OUTLET by navao

Two refined street-level outlets on the ground floor of G. Makhmaage, a 10-storey residential building on Faashana Kilege Magu in Galolhu — just off Majeedhee Magu, in the settled heart of the capital.

Close enough to the city's movement, yet set apart from its noise, Makhmaage offers brands a calmer, more considered presence: a quiet, established street minutes from Malé's busiest shopping artery, with twenty NAVAO homes and a resident community living directly above.

CUSTOMER POTENTIAL

The outlets draw on three customer streams, active across the whole day:

- Residents. Galolhu is one of the most densely settled districts of Malé — a capital of well over 200,000 people — and Makhmaage sits within an established residential grid where daily needs are met on foot.
- Shoppers. Majeedhee Magu's daily crowds are minutes away; a side-street address captures destination shoppers who seek out a brand while avoiding main-road rents and noise.
- Students & professionals. Cyryx College, nearby schools, and the offices of central Malé generate reliable weekday footfall, peaking after school hours and in the evenings, when Malé's shopping culture is at its liveliest.

Well-suited concepts: brand showroom or boutique, specialty retail, electronics or home concept store, café or bakery, pharmacy or clinic, salon and wellness, design studio or premium service centre — particularly brands that value a calm, credible address over high-street
