DHIGGA HIYA

OUTLET by navao

Facing both the Hulhumalé eastern beach and the main ring road, the outlet enjoys dual frontage that rarely comes to market: uninterrupted ocean views on one side, and the steady movement of Hulhumalé's hospitality belt.

CUSTOMER POTENTIAL

The outlet draws on three distinct customer streams, active at different hours of the day:

- Residents. An established Phase 1 catchment serving a rapidly growing island community, with 22,000+ residents already in Phase 2's Hiyaa towers and a master plan for 70,000—keeping Phase 1 at the heart of the island's retail activity.
- Visitors. The eastern beach is Hulhumalé's tourism heart. Guests from the surrounding guesthouses and hotels pass the corner daily — for breakfast, beach essentials, excursions, and evening dining.
- Commuters. Bus stops a minute away and the main-road frontage put the outlet on the daily route of workers and students moving between Hulhumalé, Malé, and the airport.

Peak activity follows the rhythm of the beach: mornings and evenings on weekdays, and steady footfall through weekends and public holidays.
